Do you value the fact that Winwick is a Church school? If so, why?

Yes, particularly because of positive influence on Canon June - but also the good spirit of the religious teaching (kindness etc) and the lovely songs & general character it adds. But strongly believe children should be told about other faiths (and spirituality without faith) and be allowed to make up their own minds.

Yes, I think it gives them an ethical foundation. Whether they commit to Christianity or not I think this is important.

Yes, it gives a strong ethos for the children to build upon.

It was a big part of my life growing up and the centre of our village community here in Winwick so I love that E. can experience the same.

Yes, as a family we find it important that my son learns about his faith.

I am not religious but good moral values are promoted due to its Christian distinctiveness

Yes, as it is beneficial to the pupils that they understand and value the Christian ethos and apply this in everyday situations to help them become empathetic and caring citizens.

Not relevant to myself personally, as I don't force religion on my child.

We are not religious and would have preferred a non-religious school. For us being a church school adds no extra value.

Yes, my child has learnt an awful lot about religion and is aware of the values

Yes I do because the things that are taught are good life principles to have.

Yes definitely. The link with Church is a wonderful thing and the Church helps define and teach wonderful things to help our children become better people

Yes - I believe this helps to give good values and a full rounded curriculum

Yes, it's good moral grounding for primary school children.

I feel it's important for young children to be surrounded by strong morals and the Christian values helps to achieve this.

The values and beliefs are very similar to those of Islamic beliefs which we respect and also implement in our daughter, hence the reason we chose Winwick.

Yes as we as a family believe children enjoy learning about the faith and enjoy taking part in the various events throughout the year.

It is a great way to introduce I. to all areas of faith in a familiar setting, not just at church.

Promotes strong values, understanding of others and builds a strong community spirit

Yes. It provides a great sense of morals in the children. And it makes the children feel as if they are part of a family.

Yes, I'm just hoping that the link continues to be as close once Cannon June has left. It's a beautiful church and has a real community spirit.

I think it instils good values

Encourages relationships within the village community.

The Christian values are very important to us as a family and so we are pleased that they are a focus of the school in worship, learning and in its ethos.

Live in village

Yes, I believe it keeps the roots of spirituality intact with the children which I think is very important.

Yes we do as we feel there is such a caring ethos and a great emphasis upon values which I feel stems from its excellent relationship with the church.

I value the fact that children are aware of the Church's involvement within the school which believe gives a good foundation to their understanding and awareness of treating people with respect.

Yes it is a wonderful school.

I think the church is absolutely beautiful and love the fact the school uses it. And it binds together some of the older residents of the village to the young children which I believe is very important, both for the adults and the children.

We have same values at home and we are Christian too

I am sure both the School and the Church will help us to raise our children with strong and important values standing for their life time.

Yes, we value the Christian teachings and links with church

I understand the value of having Winwick as a church school.

It is nice but not essential for us as a family

Yes it brings the whole community together school, church, family and communities of where we live.

It brings the whole community together along with a stronger support network. School, church, family, communities where we live together as one.

It has a caring, family feel which we feel is felt throughout the Winwick community.

I believe it has a positive impact on the way my child will be moulded for her future. Yes it helps provide an all-encompassing vision for how the school operates and what it wants to achieve and that's felt in the ground through a warmth and family feel for all pupils.

It is very family orientated.

Yes, it's the whole family/community ethos it nurtures and inspires.

It is lovely for our little girl to learn all the special values of life and the world and the school really helps this with encouraging strong values, a good ethos and church life.

Yes because as well as teaching them about Christianity, it teaches them great values and morals for life.

Yes because it not only teaches them about Christianity but great life values and morals regardless of religion.

Yes. Because it teaches Christian values.

Yes, it instils the right ethos and morals within our children

Yes, it instils the right ethos and morals within our children

The church is the heart of the community and morals our children are being raised upon, the link back to the church strengthens further the work done in school.

Yes. We are all Christians at home and believe that the church values are a so lid foundation for life.

I truly believe that it makes the school what it is with the relationship with the church and helps the child understand religion and god in a good way

Yes, my son tells me about the worship session, worship songs and the teachings of Jesus Christ.

Yes, I love how the school are excellent role models for our children and the values which you instil

I love the morals that are taught with Winwick being a church school

Yes due to the values this incorporates into the children and the curriculum

Yes, our children are receiving the correct method of religious education which leaves it open to their beliefs and opinions.

Yes because I feel that our children get the opportunity to learn about God, religion and the church in manner that is appropriate for their age. Also in helps to bring together a real sense of a family which is one of the things I love most about the school

I would support good values in any instance. We picked the school as one of these reasons.

Yes, it helps them to grow understanding a faith and giving them the basics to decide what they do with this in future life. The children enjoy it and talk about it freely and openly helping them to make their own opinions and choices.

We are not a religious family but appreciate the values of love, respect and perseverance. I don't believe RE should take over too much of the school day as this would take away from curriculum so there does need to be a balance.

Yes. As a member of the Christian church we bring our children up following Christian values and it is important to us that these values are promoted at school.

Yes, we recognise Christian values in our lives at home and want that message to be reinforced in school.

Yes. Feels like we're part of a wider family & children can experience Christianity first hand

The children grow to be well rounded, pleasant human beings with respect for others.

Yes as it can instil good Christian values into my child as part of her development.

Definitely as the school & church champion/support important values & moral upbringing to the children of the school.

Yes - we regularly attend church with our children and want them to be brought up in the Christian faith. The fact that the school and church are so closely linked really makes the school part of the wider Winwick community.

I value the idea of my child being educated within a milieu of the values of Christianity. I also value the sense of community & family.

For us, it was important that our children attended a church school.

I like the Christian values that are encouraged, love kindness and compassion.

Yes, i feel that being a church school and working so closely with the church, it sets children off on the right path of learning right from wrong, how to treat others, kindness and understanding.

I think this really contributes a lot towards our children being respectful and caring and understanding towards others and I believe this will stay with them as they grow.

We love the connection between the school, H. has been going all his life and really enjoys going over to the church and taking part in worship and particularly singing the hymns.

No, I grew up as a catholic and it was awful so I prefer to be neutral and let him decide in his own time when he understands, my beliefs are love and kindness.
